"Good Credit in the markets of the world enables a merchant to add to his ability to do business. It gives him the use of enlarged capital, thus enabling him to carry a more complete stock, improve his sales and increase his products.
The approver of credit becomes, in a certain sense, a partner of the debtor, and as such, has a right to complete information about the debtor's condition at all times.
A merchant who desires to serve his own best interests should recognize that his most valuable possession, apart from his actual assets, is a sound, substantial, and unquestioned credit reputation."
